HLB grows its West African footprint with new member firm in Ghana

HLB is pleased to welcome KKGO Chartered Accountants (now, HLB Ghana) to its global network of member firms, expanding the network's presence in Ghana and strengthening its capabilities across West Africa.

Based in Accra, HLB Ghana is a multidisciplinary accounting and advisory firm providing audit and assurance, tax and advisory services to a diverse client base. The firm works with public companies, subsidiaries of public and international companies, non-governmental organisations, and regulatory bodies, combining local market knowledge with a broad range of professional expertise.

Established in 2020, HLB Ghana has built a team with experience spanning international accounting firms and multinational organisations. The firm brings particular sector expertise in mining and oil and gas, alongside a strong advisory practice supporting clients with management consulting and business growth.

On becoming part of the HLB global network, Sampson Kusi-Appiah, CEO & Senior Partner of HLB Ghana, said:

“Joining HLB International marks a significant milestone in HLB Ghana’s journey. It strengthens our delivery of world-class business solutions while maintaining the deep local insight that our clients value. We are excited to collaborate with professionals across the HLB network to create greater value for businesses in Ghana and beyond.”

Coco Liu, HLB Chief Growth Officer, added:

“We are delighted to welcome HLB Ghana to the HLB community. Ghana is an important and dynamic market in West Africa, and the firm’s strong local knowledge, multidisciplinary expertise and commitment to supporting businesses through growth make it a valuable addition to our network. We look forward to working together to strengthen collaboration across the region and create new opportunities for our clients and member firms around the world.”

As part of HLB, HLB Ghana will strengthen its ability to support clients with international ambitions, drawing on the expertise and reach of our member firms around the world. The firm will also contribute its local knowledge and experience to cross-border opportunities connecting Ghana and West Africa with the wider HLB network.
